PEACE REIGNS IN COLORADO.

Election of Alva Adams as Governor Ends the Despotism of Peabody.

INVESTIGATING DEPOT CRIME.

New Executive Promised to Have Independence Dynamiters in Jail Thirty Days After His Inauguration.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 13.—Peace has once more come to Colorado. The election of Alva Adams as Governor by the combined votes of Republicans and Democrats, miners and mine owners, unionists and non-unionists, business men and ranchers, has sounded the knell of militarism, and under new regime the State machinery will work toward developing amity between the classes that for years have made the State a bloody battle field.

The soldiery is to be removed as an instrument of oppression and suppression. But this does not mean that the Governor-elect will not use a mailed hand on lawbreakers. To-day he repeated an election promise that runs:

"Within thirty days after my inauguration as Governor of the State the men who blew up the Independence depot, killing thirteen men, will be in jail."

Vengeance for the diabolism of June 6, last, is likely to be visited very soon upon the perpetrators of the hideous crime. A detective agency that has the matter in charge promises sensational disclosures in the near future.

Governor-elect Adams is supposed to be in possession of the details of the plot and he is resolved to bring the guilty parties to justice. The election of Adams, who was the only nominee on the Democratic ticket to pull through, is a protest on the part of the electorate of the Mountain State against the lawlessness of the administration that rode rough shod over the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, and substituted the military tribunals for the civil courts. It is a protest against the lawlessness of a trade unionism organized on trust lines, that under the domination of reckless leadership sought to strangle the law and dominate the State.

Adams will bring peace. His triumph at the polls was the result of a combination of all classes and of the support of a man who should govern with firmness and conservatism.

Roosevelt's plurality in Colorado was 15,782. Most of the Republican State ticket ran almost even with the President, but Adams and Governor Peabody, who fell 25,434 votes behind. In a marvelous run, with the support of all classes behind him as a third term candidate, Adams goes into his third term Chief Executive of Colorado with a plurality of nearly 100,000.

SHAW MAY QUIT CABINET POSITION

Silence of the President Is Regarded as Significant in This Case.

MAY RUN FOR PRESIDENCY.

Iowa Republican Credited With Having a Bee That May Become Healthiest About 1908.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Washington, Nov. 13.—The most important Cabinet change in the coming new administration of President Roosevelt is the possible retirement of Leslie M. Shaw, Secretary of the Treasury. Rumors of this have been in Washington throughout the day, but it must be said that no announcement that bears the stamp of authority has been forthcoming. Secretary Shaw returned from the West to-night, but would not discuss the question.

There have been two White House announcements, both very prominent, that Secretary Shaw would continue to remain in the Cabinet until the end of Mr. Roosevelt's term as President. Mr. Roosevelt himself is authority for this. Other semi-official remarks have been made about other Cabinet officers remaining, notably Secretary Morton. But there has been no announcement of any kind that Mr. Shaw would continue as Secretary of the Treasury, the office second in importance. The absence of such an announcement, while not conclusive, is significant.

It is believed now that the Secretary is a candidate for the presidency in 1908, and whether or not President Roosevelt desires a campaign to be made for this high office by a man occupying such an important position as head of the Treasury Department remains to be seen.

Mr. Shaw in 1900 told his friends in Iowa that he would be a candidate for the presidency in 1904 and asked their support. Some of President Roosevelt's critics insisted that his selection of the Iowa Governor as a Cabinet member had its political effect, and that the motive was to eliminate another candidate for this year.

The fact remains that Mr. Shaw decided not to make the contest last spring, but that he is practically decided to run for the office in 1908. The motive was to eliminate another candidate for this year.

It was said that his extensive trip to the West, even to the Pacific Coast, in early in this fall's campaign, had for one of its objects the advancement of his own political effect, and that the motive was to eliminate another candidate for this year.

APPEALS TO PLANTERS TO HOLD THEIR COTTON.

President Jordan of Southern Protective Association Says Price Is Sure to Rise.

Macon, Ga., Nov. 13.—Harvey Jordan of Monticello, Ga., president of the Southern Cotton Growers' Protective Association, has issued an address to the cotton producers of the South in which he says:

"The producers are to be congratulated for the firm stand they have already taken to make the crop slowly, and that fact alone has prevented the price from falling to 8 cents during the month of October. The crop is about gathered, debts generally are paid and it is no longer absolutely necessary to sell the balance of the crop."

The farmers' report recently issued from the United States Census Bureau indicates that up to October 13 only 6,000,000 bales of cotton had been ginned. This report clearly indicates that this crop will not exceed 11,000,000, if it reaches that figure.

The spinners can well afford to pay the producers 12 cents per pound for every bale of American short staple cotton made this season. The price of yarns has advanced 3 cents per pound within the last six days, and an unprecedented demand for cotton goods exists, while stocks generally are lower than they have been for the past twenty years. The thing to do now is to give the markets and shippers a rest during the next sixty days and allow present stocks of spot cotton to be gotten out of the way. Let the spinners who are living from hand to mouth run short of cotton, and force them into the market as active buyers."

"Let every holder of cotton absolutely stop selling and sit down at home and quietly contemplate results. Let each holder put no more cotton on the market until prices advance and never sell a bale on a depressed market."

"Let county meetings be held all over the belt and strong and active steps be taken to secure the maintenance of the cotton product from the greed of selfish speculators."

FUSHIMA WILL NOT TALK ON EASTERN SITUATION.

Representative of Mikado Says His Visit Has No Connection With Russian War.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Prince Fushima, member of the Japanese royal household, and special representative of the Mikado, accompanied by three of his countrymen and a retinue of servants, arrived in Chicago to-day over the Chicago and North-western Railway on his way to Washington to call on President Roosevelt and to visit the Capitol and Government offices.

On arrival in Chicago the party was taken in charge by the Japanese Consul, who looked after the entertainment of the visitors until to-night at 8 o'clock, when they left for the East over the Pennsylvania road.

"There is no question of national importance, nor any phase of Eastern conditions that care to discuss," said the Prince through his interpreter. "While Japan is at peace, it may serve to strengthen the friendship that exists between Japan and the United States, but this visit has no connection with the war with Russia."

DENEEN MAKING NO PROMISES

Governor-Elect Is Holding Aloof From Illinois Speaker-ship Fight.

HOLDS BALANCE OF POWER.

Rumor That Cullom May Enter Cabinet Changes the Situation Materially and May Bring Out Candidates.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Charles S. Deneen is not expressing any preferences for candidates for the speakership of the House of Representatives which comes into being shortly after the New Year of 1905 has been rung in. Neither the Governor-elect nor any of his intimate political associates and advisers are offering aid or comfort to a solitary one of the half dozen would-be holders of the official gavel of the next House.

Trautman was the early bird and blew in from East St. Louis before the ink had hardly dried on the election returns. His Chicago visit was short and sweet, and after formally announcing his candidacy he left for a vacation in Texas in the hope that the southwestern breezes would blow a little strength into his speakership aspirations.

The East St. Louis statesman failed to connect with the Governor-elect, but enjoyed breakfast one morning with Governor Yates and some of the inner circle of the gubernatorial household. The Governor says that he likes Trautman and that the speakership was not discussed because too much time was consumed in recounting the pleasant experiences of the last session. He said that he was practically second in command of the "big" and devoted too many hours to outgeneraling the Governor and his friends to find a spare moment to breakfast at the Executive Mansion.

YATES'S ATTITUDE.

What the intention of Governor Yates is still a problem, and the solution will not be at hand until some sort of a declaration of action is made by the Deneen forces. Naturally, it is believed that the speakership is a firmly established in an alignment with Yates, Sherman and Hamilton, the parties to the Springfield compromise, and there is sufficient ground for such a theory, or was until the result of the late election was made known.

With such a tremendous plurality for the State and national tickets, the Republican organization, of which Mr. Deneen is now the natural head, has arrogated to itself the belief that Republicanism is now invincible, and that as far as Illinois is concerned, the Democratic party is obliterated, and that, regardless of factional fights within their own lines, election time will find their own fellows in power.

This far-fetched idea is believed to now prevail with Mr. Deneen, and the County organization, in particular, and the approaches, which have been made by candidates for the speakership, and their candidatures, have been greatly indicative that the incoming State administration is to be absolutely independent of old alliances, and will depend upon its own strength and personality to carry itself through the hard times ahead of it.

The attitude of Mr. Deneen's friends is expressed by James Redick, chairman of the Cook County Central Committee, who says that it is entirely too early for any body to think of the speakership; that there is no issue, and that no member of the Legislature should at this premature date pledge himself to any one of the candidates. He makes it equally plain that none of the Chicago delegation controlled by his organization is tied up to anybody's boot.

It is probable that this is the sort of a reply which was given alike to Mr. Trautman, Edward D. Shurtliff and the friends of J. J. Drew of Joliet, who were behind his aspirations for the gavel.

Such a course makes Mr. Deneen master of the situation and effectually blocks all plans for an agreement between any of the constituent elements of the combination which will rule for the next two years at least.

LARGE FIELD IN PROSPECT.

The effect will be to bring out into the open the dozen or so candidates who are hidden from general view at present, and who have basis for hope of the favor of the Cook counties in the legislative future. Cleo J. Lindley of Greenville, the faithful follower of the late Yates administration, is already out in the clear and is said to have announced his candidacy at Springfield yesterday.

Willard Arnold of Galesburg, who was in the House from the Forty-third District last session, and who was re-elected to see the mantle of Miller fall upon him. Arnold was counted with the Sherman band of reactionists last session, and that in such event, Frank O. Lowden would become Yates's candidate against Governor Yates for the Senate.

If the senatorial fight is an issue in the contest for the speakership, it is probable that during the week many of the politicians from Southern Illinois, especially those who were with the Governor in the late unpleasantness, will find it excellent weather to visit the Exposition and in passing drop in at the Illinois building.
